Temple of Lum

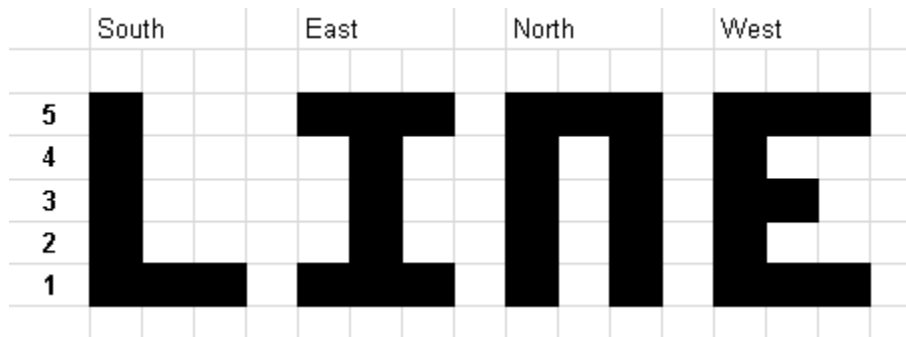

The layout of this building tests your mapping skills. As you navigate through, you should notice that the different routes through the building intertwine.

As you go through the building, you also note that some walls are painted black.

For visibility, the walls that are indicated as being painted black are shown here as red.

In front of the south side of the building is a one way arrow pointing to the right. This indicates to imagine the outside appearance, particularly the black walls, of the building starting from the south and going east.
